BETWEEN TRADITION AND MODERNITY

A bridge between the past and the future

Located in the heart of Cannes, Le Gray d'Albion is a secret refuge for film stars and celebrities that envelops its guests in a refined and serene cocoon, ensuring a stay at this prestigious 4-star oasis which is both relaxing yet full of sparkle. And with its location just a stone's throw from the Palais des Festivals, Le Gray d'Albion offers the perfect compromise for those who dream of a haven that is cosy, intimate and welcoming while still being close to Cannes' lively centre.

Although the Hotel you see today was built nearly 40 years ago, the history of Le Gray d'Albion dates back over 150 years. Its story started in 1863 when, to meet the demands of European aristocracy, led by the British, properties were being built all over Cannes. The Hotel Gray was part of this boom, built in the middle of a field of vines and fig trees alongside the Boulevard de l'Impératrice, which was to become the future Croisette. A little later on, Le Gray merged with its neighbour, the Hotel Albion. It was from this union that a new palace-Hotel was born, namely the Hotel Gray & Albion.

Built facing the Mediterranean, and with extensive gardens running down to the Croisette, the property soon became one of the favourite winter residences for Europe's aristocracy. During the 1920s, its owner set aside part of the grounds for a shopping gallery, "Les Galeries Fleuries", home to chic cafés and luxury boutiques frequented by the elegant élite of the period.

From one renaissance to another

The post-war period brought an end to this success story. Le Gray & Albion went into slow decline and in 1973 a property developer took the decision to demolish it. In its place, he built an impressive complex of buildings featuring a shopping gallery, a luxury residence... and a new Hotel, Le Gray d'Albion, which was officially opened by President Giscard d'Estaing in 1980. In 1991, the property became part of the Barrière group.

Since then, this prestigious 4-star Hotel has continued to reinvent itself to ensure that its guests enjoy the best possible experience. This included a major renovation project in 2018 that has enabled it to enter the new century with its legendary art de vivre as alive as ever. Today, Le Gray d'Albion offers its guests a cocoon of comfort just a few steps from the bustling Croisette.

Design and comfort in the guestrooms

The sense of wellbeing will be apparent to visitors as soon as they pass through the Hotel's revolving doors, a feeling that continues in its guestrooms, thanks to the astute choice of materials, equipment and furniture that combine to offer comfort, elegance and originality in equal measure and ensure an unforgettable experience. This is enhanced further by the king-size bed, the profusion of pillows, the 26cm-thick mattress and the modern, elegant design that guarantee a completely relaxing stay for our guests.

The colours chosen – a cameo of beiges – endow the Hotel with a warm and welcoming elegance, an ambience which is heightened by the use of wenge furniture, an exotic and precious wood that contrasts attractively with the clarity and lightness of the curtains. To “spice up” this refined atmosphere, the Hotel has incorporated the creative talents of some of the world's best modern-day designers. As an example, aficionados of Philippe Starck will appreciate the Victoria Ghost chairs, a fantasy of transparent polycarbonate inspired by the Louis XVI style.

Bathrooms that are more comfortable than ever

The Hotel's recently renovated bathrooms boast a modern, elegant and transparent design. Each features the very latest cutting-edge technology, while the Italian-style showers and the bathtubs are all fitted with rain showers. Every bathroom also opens on to the bedroom via an ingenious opaque glass system that maintains bathroom privacy thanks to a simple press of a button. Press it again and natural light floods in, offering a brightly lit environment in which to do glamorous make-up and hair.

A SPRING RENAISSANCE

In December 2017, the Hôtel Barrière Le Gray d'Albion began major renovation work. The lobby, bar and meeting rooms have all been given a new look, resulting in a more modern decor and a more convivial ambience.

Three months of renovation work

Since the spring of 2018, Le Gray d'Albion has a completely new look. After three months of renovation work, regular visitors to 38, rue des Serbes will no longer recognise their favourite Hotel. The renovations have completely changed the feel of the lobby, reception area, bar and meeting rooms on the first floor, even including the façade! This major facelift is the work of architect Alexandre Danan, who has created a pared-down style with a natural contemporary elegance which is in perfect harmony with the Hotel's commitment to the environment, one of the Hotel's priorities for many years now. And the Hotel continues to reinvent itself – its private beach will be renovated this winter in order to offer guests a completely new look in March 2020 in time for the summer season.

The same but different

As fashionistas are well aware, sometimes you change a single detail and it changes everything! This is clearly demonstrated with the new 2018 version of the façade of Le Gray d'Albion, which has not undergone any dramatic changes but has simply been embellished with slender strips of American walnut. These strips cover part of the stone, adding the warm, relaxed and soothing feel that is so typical of wood, the noblest of building materials, to the Hotel's ultra-modern architecture.

A redesigned reception

The transformation of Le Gray d'Albion is even more spectacular once inside the Hotel. In the Lobby, walls have been demolished to create a real feeling of space so that the bar and reception now form a single area for guests. The imposing counter which once created a distance between staff and guests has disappeared completely to be replaced by more welcoming desks and consoles which encourage more relaxed and convivial interaction between our customers and their hosts.

The fusion of the Lobby, Reception area and Bar is highlighted by the harmonious decor used in the new areas, with a careful choice of fabrics and coverings ensuring a unity of colour and materials. From the alcoves in the lounges to the two counters in the Bar and the rotunda in the atrium, you'll find the same successful combination of lightly veined false marble, mirrors, topstitched brown leather and greyish-beige textiles.

Finally, guests are still able to find their way around easily despite the lack of partitions. The different roles and activities of the Concierge desk, Reception and Bar take place alongside each other without ever becoming confused thanks to strips and waves of walnut wood present throughout the decor designed by Alexandre Danan. Just as on the façade, these strips of wood add a warm note to the light marble of the walls and floors. However, this interior woodwork has much more than a simple aesthetic function – it also acts as a marker for the different areas of the Hotel.

The wood surrounds the concierge desk to mark its boundaries and adorns the ceiling, guiding guests to the four cardinal points of the Hotel: the main entrance; the entrance from the Galerie du Gray; the lifts; and the main staircase leading to the first floor. It also marks the entrance to the bar without closing it off, so that the bar remains accessible to natural daylight... and to curious glances.

Business and show business

The 4-star Hotel's new look is also in evidence on the first floor. The corridors which lead to the lounges and the hotel's La Terrasse du Gray Restaurant echo the decor on the ground floor, with the same balanced combination of marble and wood, the same pattern on the carpet and the same use of mirrors. However, there is one unique feature – the photos of film stars which adorn the corridor walls, breaking the monotony of these long “tunnels” in an attractive manner.

The meeting rooms have also had a facelift. Decorated with large, unusually shaped earthenware vases, plain yet luminous colours, and adorned with black-and-white photos and brown wood that contrast with the pale tones, these rooms are now more modern, warmer and lighter in feel.

Alexandre Danan, the architect behind the renovation

The highly talented designer behind the renovation of Le Gray d'Albion is Alexandre Danan, mentor at the EDO (European Design Office), the interior design agency which he founded in 2000. Gifted with a constantly evolving creative flair and with experience working alongside the famous designer Jacques Garcia and architects Richard Martinet (who worked on the George V) and Didier Beuitemps (architect for the LVMH group and the Ritz), this architect has established an enviable reputation in the luxury Hotel sector. After renovating the Lobby, Restaurant and Spa at the Hotel Normandy, Danan has continued his work for Barrière by redesigning the Lobby and main Reception rooms at the Hotel Barrière Le Majestic Cannes, and renovating Le Fouquet's Cannes, where he succeeded in modernising this legendary institution while maintaining its soul, skilfully blending the best of Art Deco style with contemporary design.

FULLY COMMITTED TO THE ENVIRONMENT

From the hives on its roof to the “good for the planet” menus served in its Restaurant, Le Gray d’Albion demonstrates its commitment to the planet via numerous initiatives. Here’s a quick summary.

Sustainable Development Week

During Sustainable Development Week from 30 May to 5 June 2016, Le Gray d’Albion introduced several new initiatives to demonstrate its commitment to the planet. These included the introduction of its “Bon pour le Climat” (“Good for the Planet”) menus and its participation in the “Marathon des Bouchons” (Cork Marathon).

“Bon pour le climat” menus

During Sustainable Development Week, our Chefs set themselves the challenge of composing menus which are “good for the planet” by focusing on local, seasonal produce, creating dishes which prioritise fruit and vegetables, and choosing ingredients which help reduce the menus’ carbon footprint. The aim following this week was then to continue to offer these menus, which are as delicious as they are sustainable, throughout the year.

The Marathon des Bouchons (Cork Marathon)

The Barrière Group has supported the Bouchons d’Amour organisation since 2010. This organisation collects corks in order to buy equipment for the disabled: it takes 6,000 corks to purchase a wheelchair. As part of this project, a huge collection was organised from 30 May to 5 June in Barrière’s Casinos. For each sack of corks, participants were given a euro’s worth of chips – another sign of the group’s commitment to this cause and its understanding of the issues relating to disabilities.

A “Green Key” Hotel

Surroundings which respect natural resources and the environment. An environmental policy based on the continual improvement of water, waste and energy management. Managers and staff who are keen to take part in these ecological initiatives. In 2016, Le Gray d’Albion was once again proud to receive the “Green Key” label which recognises real commitment to the environment.

Green Key was established in Denmark in 1994. This eco-label for tourism accommodation, known as “La Clef Verte” in France, is awarded by the Foundation for Environmental Education. The aim of this ongoing voluntary policy is to adopt a positive approach with regard to the implementation of environmentally responsible Hotel management

Individual pleasures

It's not just its tranquillity that sets La Terrasse du Gray apart as the flavours in the cuisine are equally if not more important. Pierrick Cizeron and his team love working with fresh, seasonal products for both lunch and dinner. His favourite dishes for guests include raw and cooked seasonal vegetables served with an Earl Grey tea jelly and buckwheat and lemon vinegar; pan-fried langoustines and asparagus with a yellow curry bisque, fresh spinach and enoki mushrooms; pan-fried fillet of beef served with its own jus and sweet potato fries; sea bass flavoured with vanilla oil, served with seasonal vegetables and fruit à la plancha; and spring spelt wheat risotto, sautéed cabbage and a dash of extra-virgin olive oil. Bon appétit!

THE QUINTESSENCE OF SUMMER

Mademoiselle Gray enchants the Mediterranean

Standing on the very edge of the Mediterranean, Mademoiselle Gray appears as a gentle and bohemian presence offering a truly gourmet and epicurean experience. Completely reimaged by the architectural firm Prospect Design, the beach at the Hôtel Barrière Le Gray d'Albion now boasts a festive ambience where sun-blessed dishes can be savoured all day long. Whether you're planning a light lunch, an aperitif with friends, or a starlit dinner, Mademoiselle Gray offers an à la carte mediterranean menu with Lebanese influences created by Pierrick Cizeron, Executive Chef at Hotels Barrière Cannes. And whether you order mezzes made for sharing (houmous, beetroot moutabal and aubergine caviar), the freshest market-inspired dishes (poke bowl, falafels and octopus carpaccio), fish and meat cooked on the barbecue (skewers or wild fish), or one of its appetising desserts (Ice cream cup of Mademoiselle Gray or Signature meringue), the choices on the menu will delight your tastebuds.

Mademoiselle Gray is a place of celebration and freedom by the water's edge with the lapping of the waves as a backdrop, where you will be carried away by the music, dance in the moonlight, and be unable to resist one of the delicious cocktails on the menu.

An ode to both the Mediterranean and the pleasures of life, Mademoiselle Gray truly encapsulates the essence of summer.

COCKTAILS WITH A NATURAL FLAVOUR

It's not just the winds of change that have blown through the Bar at Le Gray d'Albion, but a real tornado! The venue has evolved in both shape and substance, with walls coming down, the decor changing and even the menu receiving a makeover. The latter is influenced more than ever by Emanuele Balestra, the talented bar manager at Barrière Cannes Hotels, who, in the spring of 2018, brought his unique science of cocktail-making, already so successful at the Majestic, to this new setting.

Unique cocktails!

Creating innovative cocktails such as Caïpiroska with Taliouine saffron, Cosmofestival, Americano with camomile, Bloody B and Bee Fashioned, all priced at 14€, Balestra once again revisits the classic cocktails of his profession, giving them a completely new character thanks to his jellies and infusions made from aromatic herbs, his homemade bitters and other secret concoctions prepared with 100% natural ingredients.

In addition to these subtle creations, the new menu also offers a dozen more traditional cocktails, as well as alcohol-free cocktails which are nonetheless full of flavour! And to accompany your drink, the bar serves a few sweet and savoury snacks, including Corsican charcuterie, a selection of mature cheeses and Socca crisps, beef parmentier with roasted hazelnuts, and apricot and sweet almond pavlova.

A large, empty conference room with rows of black chairs facing a screen displaying the 'BARRIÈRE' logo. The room has a modern, minimalist design with a high ceiling and recessed lighting. The walls are light-colored with vertical panels. The floor is a light, neutral tone. The overall atmosphere is professional and clean.
